Graduation rates shown are cumulative. Retention rates include students who are still enrolled or have graduated. This factsheet reports changes over time in persistence statistics for first-time, full-time freshmen attending the University of Memphis. Students who initially matriculated in a fall term or began their studies in the summer are considered first-time freshmen. This includes students who entered with advanced standing (college credit earned before graduation from high school). Each student is followed for eight years (or through the most recent year available) after his/her initial term. A student who enrolled for classes in the fall term of a given year is said to have been retained for that year. NOTE: GRADUATION YEAR INCLUDES FALL THROUGH SUMMER TERMS.

Graduation rates shown are cumulative. Retention rates include students who are still enrolled or have graduated. This factsheet reports changes over time in persistence statistics for first-time, full-time freshmen attending the University of Memphis. Students who initially matriculated in a fall term or began their studies in the summer are considered first-time freshmen. This includes students who entered with advanced standing (college credit earned before graduation from high school). Each student is followed for eight years (or through the most recent year available) after his/her initial term. A student who enrolled for classes in the fall term of a given year is said to have been retained for that year. NOTE: GRADUATION YEAR INCLUDES FALL THROUGH SUMMER TERMS.
